Hands up, don't shoot The slogan originated with initial reports that claimed Michael Brown had his hands up when he was shot, which were later found to be untrue. The slogan implies one has their hands in the air, a common sign of submission, and is therefore not a threat to an approaching police officer. "Hands up, don't shoot", sometimes shortened to "hands up", is a slogan and gesture that originated after the August 9, 2014, police killing of Michael Brown in Ferguson, Missouri, and then adopted at protests against police brutality elsewhere in the United States 12aaf43696

This was only achieved after defeating the Zulu Kingdom, at the Battle of Blood River, which took place on Sunday 16 December 1838. This battle would not have taken place if the Zulu King had honoured the agreement that he had made with the Voortrekkers to live together peacefully. The Zulu king knew that they outnumbered the Voortrekkers and decided to overthrow them and that led to the Battle of Blood River. 12aaf43696
