If they did not eat the marshmallow, the reward was either another marshmallow or a pretzel stick, depending on the child's preference. During this time, the researcher left the child in a room with a single marshmallow for about 15 minutes and then returned. In follow-up studies, the researchers found that children who were able to wait longer for the preferred rewards tended to have better life outcomes, as measured by SAT scores, educational attainment, body mass index (BMI), and other life measures 2ad766228d
