The word ishq does not appear in the central religious text of Islam, the Quran, which instead uses derivatives of the verbal root habba (حَبَّ), such as the noun hubb (حُب). The word is traditionally derived from the verbal root 'aṣāq "to stick, to cleave to" and connected to the noun 'aṣāqah, which denotes a kind of ivy. In its most common classical interpretation, ishq refers to the irresistible desire to obtain possession of the beloved (ma'shūq), expressing a deficiency that the lover ('āshiq) must remedy in order to reach perfection (kamāl). Like the perfections of the soul and the body, love thus admits of hierarchical degrees, but its underlying reality is the aspiration to the beauty (al-husn) which God manifested in the world when he created Adam in his own image. The Islamic conception of love acquired further dimensions from the Greek-influenced view that the notions of Beauty, Good, and Truth (al-haqq) "go back to one indissoluble Unity (wahda)". e325f355b1 The Catholic Church by ancient tradition recognizes both Adam and Eve (in Latin: Adam et Eva) as saints.
