Over the years the painting has undergone a reassessment. No photograph exists of it prior to 1936, when it occupied an insignificant place in an exhibition of De Souza's work held in the Fine Arts Salon of the Palácio de Cristal in Porto. Within the same exhibition, the painting Self-Portrait with Black Ribbon occupied a dominant position. By 2021, however, when the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation organized an exhibition of Portuguese women's art from 1900 to 2020, called All... 1c291bbcda De Souza painted several self-portraits during her life. They are usually identified by the features that accompany the portrait. For example, this portrait is known, for obvious reasons, as the red-coat self-portrait, while also well known are her Self-Portrait with Black Ribbon, and the Saint Anthony self-portrait in which she dresses as the saint. 1c291bbcda Violeta Hemsy de Gainza was born in Tucumán Province on 25 January 1929, to Turkish Sephardic immigrants. Her mother sang French songs to her, and sent her to the Academy of Fine Arts at age six, with her first instrument the piano. She first studied to be a chemist, graduating in 1950. She worked with Walter Seelmann-Eggebert, the father of Argentina's nuclear program. With music becoming more important, she obtained a scholarship to improve her skills at the Teacher's College at Columbia University in New York City in 1951. She completed her studies at the National University of Tucumán in music, focused on piano, and graduating with a licentiate in 1956.... 1c291bbcda Following this incident, other exhibitors began including age ratings for their exhibitions, as was the case with the Farnese de Andrade exhibition in Curitiba, which took place

Queermuseu ('Queer Museum – Cartographies of Difference in Brazilian Art') was a Brazilian art exhibition presented at the Farol Santander Porto Alegre center. After a crowdfunding campaign, the exhibition was reopened in 2018 at Parque Lage in Rio de Janeiro. The exhibition generated controversy due to accusations of promoting pedophilia, zoophilia, and blasphemy. Santander responded to criticism and pressure from religious and conservative groups by canceling the exhibition. The curator of Queermuseu, Gaudêncio Fidelis, reported that the reopening was visited by more than ten thousand people. This decision generated further criticism, based on claims of defending freedom of expression and artistic creation. He emphasized that he received numerous death threats because of the exhibition.

Propagated on social media, mainly by the Free Brazil Movement, these accusations were part of a moral panic surrounding early childhood education. Associação Chico Lisboa launched the 'Mostra Fora da Margem: Panorama Subjetividades Queer' in 2021, an exhibition featuring LGBTQ artists in response to Queermuseu – Cartografias da diferença na arte brasileira (lit 1c29lbbcd
