For twenty years, Americans had been bitterly divided over the nation's monetary standard. The gold standard, which the United States had effectively been on since 1873, limited the money supply but eased trade with other nations, such as the United Kingdom, whose currency was also based on gold. Many Americans, however, believed that bimetallism (making both gold and silver legal tender) was necessary for the nation's economic health. The financial Panic of 1893 intensified the debates, and when President Grover Cleveland (a Democrat) continued to support the gold standard against the will of much of his party... 66d12d3d44 CEMMTR 66d12d3d44 == History == 66d12d3d44 Contract bridge is a trick-taking card game played by four players in two competing partnerships in which a sequence of bidding, also known as the auction, precedes the play of the cards. The purpose of this bidding is for players to inform their partners of the content of their hand and to arrive at a suitable contract at which to play the hand (or to prevent the opponents from arriving at a suitable contract). Although bidding is often "natural" (describing a hand by simple reference to possession, shape, and strength of the named suit), players may also bid using conventions, which assign more specific information to certain calls, particularly at the more advanced levels of competitive play. Bill Root defines "convention" as, "A specific agreement... 66d12d3d44 Organizational day: January 3, 2009 66d12d3d44 CAC097-171915- 66d12d3d44 Robert Bunsen invented the now-famous Bunsen burner in 1855, which was useful in flame tests due to its non-luminous flame that did not disrupt the colors emitted by the test materials. The Bunsen burner, combined with a prism (filtering the color interference of contaminants), led to the creation of the spectroscope, capable of emitting the spectral emission of various elements. In 1860, the unexpected appearance of sky-blue and dark red was observed in spectral emissions by Bunsen and Gustav Kirchhoff, leading to the discovery of two alkali metals, caesium (sky blue) and rubidium (dark red). Today, this low-cost method is used in secondary education to teach students to detect metals in samples... 66d12d3d44

"alert" (or show an alert card from the bidding box) In contract bridge, a convention is an agreement about an artificial call or a set of related artificial calls. The warning has a higher priority than a local area emergency (LAE), but it's less specific than a civil danger warning (CDW); however, both a LAE and a CDW often are in effect for specific areas. For example, the warning could be used to describe an alert issued by the National Terrorism Advisory System. It is typically issued by a local or state authority and is relayed by the National Weather Service 66d12d3d44

WKBT signed-on August 1, 1954, as a sister station to WKBH radio (AM 1410, now WIZM). In the call sign, the "T" for "television" replaced the "H" to differentiate the stations. It originally carried programming from all four major networks (CBS, NBC, ABC, and DuMont) but has always been a primary CBS affiliate. It lost DuMont after that network shut down in 1956 and lost NBC in 1958 after La Crosse and Eau Claire were collapsed into a single market. WKBT then shared ABC with NBC affiliate WEAU-TV (channel 13, based in Eau Claire) until WXOW (channel 19) signed-on from La Crosse in 1970. 66d12d3d44 ==
