Artiodactyla Some modern taxonomists thus apply the name Cetartiodactyla () to this group, while others opt to include cetaceans within the existing name of Artiodactyla. Typically, they are ungulates which bear weight equally on two (an even number) of their five toes (the third and fourth, often in the form of a hoof). The other three toes are either present, absent, vestigial, or pointing posteriorly. Another difference between the two orders is that many artiodactyls (except for Suina) digest plant cellulose in one or more stomach chambers rather than in their intestine (as perissodactyls do). The testicles are located in the scrotum and thus outside the abdominal cavity. The ovaries of many females descend as the testicles descend of many Artiodactyla (AR-tee-oh-DAK-tih-lə; from Ancient Greek ἄρτιος ártios 'even' and δάκτυλος dáktulos 'finger, toe') is an order of placental mammals. By contrast, most perissodactyls bear weight on an odd number of the five toes. Some researchers use "even-toed ungulates" to exclude cetaceans and only include terrestrial artiodactyls, making the term paraphyletic in nature. Molecular biology, along with fossil discoveries, has found that cetaceans (whales, dolphins, and porpoises) fall within this taxonomic branch, being most closely related to hippopotamuses 9c3f5c5c6c

Mammal The testicles of most mammals A mammal (from Latin mamma 'breast') is a vertebrate animal of the class Mammalia (). The study of mammals is called mammalogy. Depending on the species, penile erection is driven either by blood flow into vascular, spongy tissue or by muscular action. These characteristics distinguish them from reptiles and birds, from which their ancestors diverged in the Carboniferous period over 300 million years ago. Around 6,640 extant species of mammals have been described and divided into 27 orders. Mammals are characterized by the presence of milk-producing mammary glands for feeding their young, a broad neocortex region of the brain, fur or hair, and three middle ear bones 9c3f5c5c6c
