I Am Woman originals. A new recording of the song was released as a single in May 1972 and became a number-one hit later that year, eventually selling over one million copies. In 2025, the 1972 re-recording of "I Am Woman" was selected by the United States Library of Congress for preservation in the National Recording Registry. Performed by Reddy, the first recording of "I Am Woman" appeared on her debut album I Don't Know How to Love Him, released in May 1971, and was heard during the closing credits for the 1972 film Stand Up and Be Counted. Following Reddy's death in September 2020, the song peaked at number 2 on the Australian digital sales chart. The song came near the apex of the counterculture era and, by celebrating female empowerment, became an enduring feminist anthem for the women's liberation movement. The composition was the result of Reddy's search for a song that would express her growing passion for female "I Am Woman" is a song written by Australian musicians Helen Reddy and Ray Burton. "Gold Dust Woman" originally started as a folk song, but Nicks sought a darker arrangement as production on the song progressed. Nicks presented the song to bandmate Lindsey Buckingham on an acoustic guitar and remarked that the band began recording the song two days later. Ken Caillat, who produced Rumours, remarked that the song "evolved slowly" and that "the basic track was very simple, kind of like a folk song. Stevie wanted it to grow. It just kind of snuck up on you. The next thing I knew it was getting kind of creepy." In its original demo form, the song was nearly eight minutes long and consisted of a few... 8fadb2f065
