Elective surgery Elective surgeries Elective surgery or elective procedure is surgery that is scheduled in advance because it does not involve a medical emergency. These include inguinal hernia surgery, cataract surgery, mastectomy for breast cancer, and the donation of a kidney by a living donor. Most surgeries are elective, scheduled at a time to suit the surgeon, hospital, and patient. Semi-elective surgery is a surgery that must be done to preserve the patient's life, but does not need to be performed immediately b1f9a0a2b4

The hospital was established as the infirmary for the local workhouse in 1859. A training school for nurses was added in 1892. The facility was rebuilt as the Mile End Old Town Infirmary in 1883 and then served as a military hospital during the First World War. The Infirmary changed its name to Mile End Hospital in 1930, and was taken over by London County Council. At the time of transfer to the LCC, the Medical Superintendent was Alan Randall MD, the steward was Mr. E A R Williams and the Matron was Miss FC Griggs SRN (State Registered Nurse). Miss Griggs was also a member of the Chartered Society of Massage and Medical Gymnastics (CSMMG). Mile End Hospital joined the National Health Service in 1948. It became the Royal London Hospital (Mile End) in 1990 but reverted to being called Mile End Hospital in 1994, and was taken under the management of Barts Health NHS Trust when it was set up in 2012. Notable staff include Avis Hutt, the nurse and political campaigner who trained at the hospital from 1935 to 1938. b1f9a0a2b4

Eva Charlotte Ellis Luckes (she spelled her name Lückes with the umlaut until World War I) was born in Exeter, Devon on 8 July 1854 into an upper middle-class family. Her father, Henry Richard Luckes, was a bank manager and entrepreneur who invested in local railways, and mines. They lived in Ross on Wye, and in Newnham, Gloucestershire. Miss Luckes, the eldest of three daughters, was educated at dame schools in Malvern, and at Cheltenham Ladies' College, and possibly in Dresden. She is said to have suffered from some physical disability and had a horse to help her travel about the countryside. After she finished her education she lived at home, helping her mother run the house and visited the sick of the parish. It was this that developed her interest in nursing. b1f9a0a2b4
