The question of the origin of the matter in the universe is no longer thought to be beyond the range of science ... everything can be created from nothing ... it is fair to say that the universe is the ultimate free lunch. – Alan Guth, The Inflationary Universe: The Quest for a New Theory of Cosmic Origins 43bb7a392f == Origin of the universe == 43bb7a392f == A == 43bb7a392f is he right?, can something be created from nothing? I don't get how....--Cosmic girl 01:50, 1 January 2006 (UTC) 43bb7a392f We have to be pretty strict about this, because an RFC is one of the few ways to attract the broader community's attention when there's an Wikipedia:Ownership of content problem or a Wikipedia:Walled garden that needs outside attention. The fact that an editor doesn't welcome outside attention sometimes indicates that there is a problem. I'm not saying that these things are happening in this case, but the rules have to be the rules for all RFCs, not just for the ones we agree with, because these things do happen in some cases. We can't really have opponents of an RFC question/proposal, no matter how well intentioned or how justified they think it is in this one case, unilaterally deciding that the rest of the community doesn't get to find out about the dispute. 43bb7a392f Wikipedia:Requests for comment#Reasons and ways to end RfCs provides a list of circumstances under which you can stop an RFC started by someone else, and disagreeing with the question or wishing that it contained additional information is not in the list. 43bb7a392f I wouldn't bother... 43bb7a392f @Axad12 has removed an RFC tag from Talk:Breyers#Request for comment on propylene glycol now twice within an hour. 43bb7a392f (I'm sorry for the boxes, I don't know why they appeared) 43bb7a392f
