Dog breeding The Western Shar Pei has been bred to have a meatier mouth and more wrinkly skin than the traditional Chinese Shar Pei it originated from. Initially Dog breeding is the practice of mating selected dogs with the intention of maintaining or producing specific qualities and characteristics. exaggerated. Breeding relies on the science of genetics, hence a breeder who is knowledgeable on canine genetics, health, and the intended purpose of the dogs attempts to breed suitable dogs. When dogs reproduce without such human intervention, their offspring's characteristics are determined by natural selection, while "dog breeding" refers specifically to the artificial selection of dogs, in which dogs are intentionally bred by their owners

== Terminology == A person who intentionally mates dogs to produce puppies is referred to as a dog breeder. Line breeding is the planned breeding of dogs with their relatives. This is done to strengthen the appearance of specific desired traits in offspring. Line... Prince Edward Island, a province of Canada In 1926, a rabies-control measure banned all foreign dogs admission onto the island; thus the dogs on Bali have bred within their own unique gene pool, having been refined for nearly one-hundred years since the passing of these policies

A litter consists of the puppies born from the same pregnancy. A whelp is a newborn puppy and giving birth to dogs is called whelping. Dogs commonly give birth in a whelping box, a simple box or pen provided to the dam to help shelter and contain the puppies.

Tight lip syndrome As puppies grow, the maxilla typically expands before the mandible. This abnormal lip positioning causes the mandibular teeth to be pushed inward, disrupting normal jaw alignment and growth. Tight lip syndrome is a congenital disorder observed in some Shar Pei puppies where the lower lip curls over the mandibular teeth, particularly affecting Tight lip syndrome is a congenital disorder observed in some Shar Pei puppies where the lower lip curls over the mandibular teeth, particularly affecting the canine and incisor teeth. The interference caused by the curled lip can prevent the mandible from growing properly and can lead to a misalignment of the teeth b3b6506b73

Pei County (沛县), Jiangsu, China b3b6506b73 The ancestors of the historic Balinese street dogs arrived on the island around 3,000 years ago. A genetic study indicated that the Kintamani breed is genetically related to local island dogs found on Bali. In turn, the island's resident and stray dogs are most-closely aligned with the Australian dingo or the New Guinea singing dog, and more distantly-related to AKC-recognised breeds of

Asian origin, but less to those of European origin. b3b6506b73 In the 1990s, selective breeding resulted in Shar Pei dogs with an increased amount of facial flesh, leading to a range of health problems, including small external auditory canals, edematous facial features, and traumatic occlusions. Breeding for heavier, smushier faces in particular led to the condition referred to as "tight lip syndrome," in which the lower lip may cover the mandibular incisor teeth, causing lingual tipping of these teeth and impeding normal bite alignment, leading to an underbite. b3b6506b73 Pei, Tibet, a town in Tibet b3b6506b73
