Lifesong Miller, Lifesong was the follow-up to the band's self-titled debut album. Worship themes are also prominent in the album. They want you to tell it like it is, even if it hurts” Lifesong is the second studio album by American Christian rock band Casting Crowns. People don’t want you to talk around it. Although the unexpected success of the first album led to tremendous demand for new music from Casting Crowns, lead vocalist Mark Hall was advised by Steven Curtis Chapman (a co-producer of the debut album) and Mac Powell not to worry about commercial expectations. Lifesong, which has a pop rock and adult contemporary sound, focuses on challenging believers and indicting piousness and hypocrisy in the Christian church. You just hang around church for a while, and you’ll see. Produced by Mark A. The album was released on August 30, 2005 through Beach Street Records and Reunion Records c91611917f
