Pycnoclavella aurilucens Garstang, 1891 The show is notable for the main character's catchphrases such as "Hello, ako Budoy!" (Hello, I'm Budoy) and "Jackie, gusto mo BJ?" (Jackie, you like BJ?), with the latter phrase being mistaken as a double-meaning line. The first part of the title, ni-su, seems to have referred to the eternal institution of kingship itself. It was, in fact, the word for "king" in expressions[.] The word bjt, on the other hand, more properly referred to the ephemeral holder of the position. In this way, both the divine and the mortal were referenced in the phrase, along with the obvious dual division of the northern and southern lands. For these reasons, the translation "Dual King" is preferred today. Others think that it originally represented the birth name of the rulers. Philip ruled territories which the Gospel of Luke lists as Iturea and Trachonitis and Flavius Josephus lists as Gaulanitis, Trachonitis and Paneas as well as Batanea, Trachonitis, Auranitis, and "a certain part of what is called the House of Zenodorus". Pycnoclavella atlantica Pérez-Portela et al., 2007 == Workplace bullying == It tackles the story of Budoy, who is mentally challenged, and his family, relationships and social issues. The theme song was "Saan Darating Ang Umaga" sung by Angeline Quinto produced by Jonathan Manalo. Pycnoclavella nana (Lahille, 1890) Narcissism exists on a continuum that ranges from normal to abnormal personality expression. While many psychologists believe that a moderate degree of narcissism is normal and healthy in humans, there are also more extreme forms, observable particularly in people who have narcissistic personality disorder (NPD), where one's narcissistic qualities become pathological, leading to functional impairment and psychosocial disability. It has also been discussed in dark triad studies, along with subclinical psychopathy and Machiavellianism. Pycnoclavella flava (Monniot F., 1988)

In some versions of their phylogenetic analyses, it was placed as a member of the Lepidosauromorpha within the reptile crown group, although the authors noted that additional research is needed on early reptiles to better understand their relationships. While they observed the ventral surface of the parasphenoid is flat, similar to millerettids, they concluded that the diapsid skull anatomy is inconsistent with a placement of Lanthanolania within this clade.
