

Shanghai Pudong New District

List of administrative divisions of Shanghai In April 2009 Nanhui District was merged into Pudong. Huangpu District is now the location of the municipal government headquarters, The Bund (the traditional financial district), and well-known shopping areas including Nanjing Road, Huaihai Road, and Xintiandi. These seven districts are collectively referred to as the "urban area" of Shanghai (市区) or the city centre (中心). Seven of the administrative districts together make up Shanghai's "urban core", and there is no single "city centre" district amongst them, although Huangpu District contains most of the traditional city centre area of Shanghai. Today's Huangpu is the result of the mergers of three old districts: the original Huangpu District merged with Nanshi District in 2000, and in 2011 Luwan District also merged into Huangpu. Across the Huangpu River, Pudong includes Lujiazui, the financial center of Shanghai as well as China, and has been undergoing rapid development since its formation in 1992. Additionally, Pudong New Area (on the Shanghai is one of the four direct-controlled municipalities of People's Republic of China, and is further divided into 16 districts. Other prominent business and shopping areas include Xujiahui in Xuhui District, Jing'an Temple in Jing'an District, Hongqiao in Changning District, Wujiaochang in Yangpu District, and North Sichuan Road in Hongkou 72ddee959a
